U.S. Adds $20M to Quake Relief

WASHINGTON | The U.S. Agency for International Development is adding $20 million to an initial $15 million contribution for Asian earthquake relief as Secretary of State Colin Powell bristled at a United Nations official's suggestion that the United States has been "stingy."

Describing the $20 million as a "line of credit," Deputy State Department spokesman Adam Ereli said the new total of $35 million is bound to be increased. "We know the needs will grow," he said.

Powell, irritated by the U.N. official's criticism, toured morning television talk shows to say the Bush administration will follow up its contributions with additional large sums.

"The United States has given more aid in the last four years than any other nation or combination of nations in the world," Powell said when asked about the comments by Jan Egeland, the U.N. humanitarian aid chief.

At a news conference on Monday, Egeland exhorted "rich" nations to do more. "It is beyond me why are we so stingy, really," he said. Egeland said on Tuesday, however, that his remarks had been misinterpreted and were not directed toward any particular country. BARRY SCHWEID (AP)

Tsunami toll exceeds 55,000 and may climb much higher

BANDA ACEH, INDONESIA | Hungry refugees survived on coconuts or looted food on Indonesia's battered Sumatra island Tuesday as the region's death toll from a mammoth earthquake and tsunami rose above 55,000. The U.N. health agency warned that epidemics could claim as many lives.

There were vast areas of devastation in Indonesia where the bodies had not been counted. An official said 10,000 people might have died in the area around one Sumatran town, which would be the worst death toll in a single location.

Sri Lanka listed 21,715 people dead, India 4,400 and Thailand 1,500, with the toll expected to rise. A total of more than 300 were killed in Malaysia, Myanmar, Bangladesh, the Maldives, Somalia, Tanzania, Seychelles and Kenya.

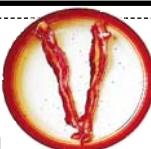

In India, a police official said 8,000 people were missing and feared dead, most of them on two island chains. Along India's southeastern coast, hospital teams stood by to help the injured, but three days after the disaster still spent most of their time tabulating the dead.

Indonesia's Health Ministry said in a statement that thousands more bodies were found Tuesday, raising to more than 27,000 the number of confirmed deaths in parts of Sumatra island, the territory closest to the epicenter of the quake that send tsunami waves rolling across the Indian Ocean.

"The sea was full of bodies," said one refugee, who sailed a small boat to Banda Aceh, on Sumatra's northern tip, to seek help for his family in Surang. He said his family had nothing to eat but coconuts. "I don't know how long everyone else will survive," he said. (AP)

COMAS

Boss's Orders

A Revere, Mass., man who drank himself into a coma woke up after a message from his boss to "Get your ass back to work!" was relayed to him. In November, after Bill DiPasquale was fired from his waiter's job at Abe & Louie's steakhouse in Boston because of drinking, he locked himself in his home and drank himself unconscious, the Boston Herald reported. Relatives found him Dec. 2, and, last week, when it looked like he would not recover, his family decided to end life support efforts. When the dying man's ex-boss heard the news, he barked, "You tell him to wake up, get out of bed and get his ass back to work!" DiPasquale's friend relayed the message and five minutes later, DiPasquale suddenly awoke and uttered, "I've got to get to work." (EXPRESS)

Ohio Recount Trims Victory Margin

TOLEDO, OHIO | Election officials finished the presidential recount in Ohio on Tuesday, with the final tally shaving about 300 votes off President Bush's six-figure margin of victory in the state that gave him a second term.

The recount shows Bush winning Ohio by 118,457 votes over Sen. John Kerry, according to unofficial results provided to The Associated Press by the 88 counties. Lucas County, home to Toledo, was the last to finish counting.

The state had earlier declared Bush the winner by 118,775 votes and plans to adjust its totals to reflect the recount.

The Kerry campaign supported the recount, but said it did not expect the tally to change the election winner. Supporters of the recount said they wanted to make sure every valid vote was counted.

Kerry gained 734 more votes in the recount, and Bush picked up 449. JOHN SEEWER (AP)

NASA Rolls Out Redesign

Improved fuel tank considered a key step toward shuttle launch

WASHINGTON | NASA takes a major step toward returning astronauts to space when engineers this week ship an improved rocket fuel tank that has been refitted to avoid the falling debris that caused the destruction of Columbia and the death of seven astronauts.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials said that the redesigned fuel tank, a massive vessel that supplies propellant for the launch of the space shuttle, will start a barge trip on Friday from a Mississippi plant to the launch site on Florida's east coast.

Sandy Coleman, NASA's external tank project manager, said improvements made on the fuel tank "gives us confidence that problems like what happened on Columbia will not happen again."

The total cost of the new tank, including tests and redesign, is still being calculated, but it will be more expensive than the $40 million cost of the old-style tank, said Coleman.

NASA currently plans a May or June launch of space shuttle Discovery. PAUL RECER (AP)

Inaugural Tickets Hard to Come By

Passes to swearing-in ceremony become a hot GOP commodity

WASHINGTON | It's one of the hottest tickets in Washington this winter, and unlike most of the parties planned for President Bush's second inauguration, it's free and the dress is come-however-you-can-stay-warm. But getting one of the 250,000 tickets to Bush's swearing-in ceremony on the steps of the Capitol won't be easy, particularly for people from so-called red states that voted Republican in November.

For most people, the only way they can get a ticket is through their senator or representative and the demand for them in GOP-majority states is running high, congressional aides say.

Each senator, regardless of party, gets 400 tickets to distribute. House members get about 200 apiece. To meet the demand, Republican lawmakers are turning to Democrats for their leftovers.

For example, Sen. John Kerry of Massachusetts — the Democratic challenger Bush defeated — had only about 220 requests for tickets last week, said spokesman David Wade.

Other people invited who may have an extra ticket include former members of Congress and governors.

FDA Approves New Medication For Severe Pain

WASHINGTON | The government approved a drug Tuesday that offers a new way of fighting severe pain — an option for patients who no longer benefit from morphine and other traditional pain medications.

It's the first in a new class of drugs that selectively blocks the nerve channels responsible for transmitting pain signals. It will be marketed as Prialt and should be available by the end of January.

"When you've taken all the kinds of pain medication that there is and you still have pain, that is a very frightening situation," said Dr. Lars Ekman, of the drug's Ireland-based manufacturer, Elan.

Morphine is the standard treatment for severe pain, but its effects eventually wear off and the dosage must be increased or altered.

The idea for the drug came from a snail called the Conus magus, which paralyzes its victims with venom after capturing them, the company said. Researchers based development of the drug on this venom. (AP)

WASHINGTON | Hundreds of Americans remain missing two days after devastating tsunamis struck Asia, but the State Department says a large number have been located and are safe.

The State Department said Tuesday that 12 Americans had died, seven in Sri Lanka and five in Thailand. Bush administration officials sought to allay concerns about the missing, saying it might simply be a matter of not getting in touch with U.S. authorities in Asia. Still, the State Department deputy spokesman Adam Ereli told reporters, "I would not presume to tell you that the casualty figure we have today is final."

So far, more than 80 Westerners have been confirmed dead across the region. But a British consulate official in Thailand warned that hundreds more foreign tourists were likely killed in that country's resorts. BARRY SCHWEID (AP)

Train's Idyllic Journey Ends in Horror

802 people died after waves swept it off tracks in Sri Lanka

TELWATTA, SRI LANKA | The train known as the Queen of the Sea chugged slowly up the sandy, palm-fringed coast of eastern Sri Lanka, carrying hundreds of residents from the capital to visit relatives or enjoy a day at the sunny resorts near the town of Galle.

The train had nearly reached its destination Sunday when the tsunami struck — a wall of water some 30 feet high, enveloping the Queen and lifting its cars off the track into a thick marsh, killing at

Epidemics May Double Deaths

Casualties from disease may dwarf toll from quake, tsunamis

GENEVA | The World Health Organization warned that disease in the aftermath of southern Asia's tsunami disaster could kill as many people as the deadly waves and earthquake have.

Governments in 11 nations are still trying to determine how many were killed in the devastation wreaked by Sunday's quake and the tsunamis it caused. The death toll now stands at more than 50,000 and is expected to rise.

But with relief officials warning of possible cholera epidemics and malaria, Dr. David Nabarro, head of crisis operations for WHO, told reporters Tuesday in Geneva that "there is certainly a chance that we could have as many dying from communicable diseases as from the tsunami."

Nabarro said the main threat to life now is communicable diseases associated with a lack of clean water and sanitation.

"The initial terror associated with the tsunamis and the earthquake itself may be dwarfed by the longer term suffering of the affected communities," Nabarro warned.

Hospitals and health services already are overwhelmed and may not be able to cope with people who fall ill with disease, Nabarro said.

Relief organizations are distributing supplies, and the United Nations has said it will likely make its largest ever appeal for humanitarian funding in response to the disaster. The hardest-hit countries are Indonesia, whose Aceh region was closest to the epicenter of Sunday's earthquake; Sri Lanka and Thailand. SAM CAGE (AP)

Dozens Die in String of Iraq Attacks

Most of those killed are Iraqi police; seen as bid to disrupt vote

BAGHDAD | In one of the bloodiest days in recent months, insurgents killed at least 25 people, mostly Iraqi police, in multiple attacks across the volatile Sunni Triangle on Tuesday and a militant group claimed it executed eight Iraqi employees of an American security company, saying they had collaborated with U.S. occupational forces.

With the insurgency that is targeting mainly U.S. troops, Iraqi officials and security forces escalating ahead of Jan. 30 parliamentary elections, Iraqi lawmakers appealed for national unity, fearing the militants could trigger civil war.

"The terrorists intend to destroy Iraq's national unity," said a statement issued by the Interim National Assembly. "Their intentions are to harm this country which faces crucial challenges amid a very difficult period."

The National Assembly is a temporary legislature that will be replaced by an elected assembly after the Jan. 30 vote, the first free elections in Iraq since 1958.

BALLOTING ACT: A worker prepares a billboard in Baghdad on Tuesday that urges Iraqi citizens to vote in Jan. 30 parliamentary elections, the country's first free vote since 1958. The sign reads in Arabic "To Give Our Children a Better Country."

The local Al-Iraqiya television network reported that a total of 34 people died on Tuesday, including 26 police officers and national guard troops, but that figure could not be independently confirmed.

In one of the deadliest attacks, gunmen stormed a police station near Saddam's hometown of Tikrit, overwhelming 12 Iraqi policemen, slitting their throats and then blowing up the building, said Lt. Col. Saad Hmoud, a local police official.

Militants released a videotape Tuesday, saying they have executed eight people and released two Iraqis who were employed by Sandi Group, an American security company, and had been held hostage since Dec. 13. DUSAN STOJANOVIC (AP)

Victor in Ukraine Urges Demonstrations' Return

Yushchenko tells his supporters to blockade government buildings

KIEV, UKRAINE | Viktor Yushchenko, fresh from his victory in Ukraine's disputed presidential race, called on his supporters Tuesday to blockade the Cabinet of Ministers building to prevent his opponent from holding a government session.

Prime Minister Viktor Yanukovych, the Kremlin favorite who has come under increasing pressure to concede defeat to Yushchenko, returned to work Tuesday after taking a vacation to campaign ahead of last Sunday's vote.

The opposition blockaded government buildings for weeks after the fraudulent Nov. 21 vote, preventing Yanukovych and other officials from entering their offices. The country's high court annulled that ballot, forcing Sunday's rerun.

"I ask everyone, especially the people in the tent camp, to strengthen the blockade," Yushchenko said.

Oleksandr Ternavsky, Yanukovych's spokesman, said the session would go ahead as planned, and called Yushchenko's move "completely illegal." Under Ukrainian law, the prime minister can retain his post until replaced by the incumbent president or the president-elect. ANNA MELNICHUK (AP)

Jailed Oil Magnate Lashes Out at Officials in Russia

MOSCOW | In his harshest criticism of the Kremlin to date, jailed tycoon Mikhail Khodorkovsky accused the Russian government of stealing his Yukos oil empire and warned in a letter published Tuesday that an ongoing crackdown on post-Soviet freedoms will ruin the country.

Writing from prison, where he has been for more than 14 months, Khodorkovsky said the sale of Yukos' main production unit into state hands this month "was the most senseless and destructive event in the economic sphere since President Vladimir Putin has taken helm."

"Using selective justice, introducing new legal norms and applying them retroactively," the state has undermined trust in the legal system, said Khodorkovsky, who is charged with fraud and tax evasion.

Putin has cast the 18-month crackdown on Khodorkovsky and Yukos as an effort to fight corruption and shady bookkeeping. But most observers see it as a vendetta for Khodorkovsky's perceived political ambitions, including his funding of opposition parties. (AP)

Reputed Drug Leader Nabbed

Police captured a reputed leader of the Norte del Valle drug cartel Tuesday, the latest arrest in a U.S.-backed bid to dismantle a gang accused of trafficking half of all cocaine sold in the United States in the 1990s. Dagoberto Florez was on a list of most-wanted cocaine kingpins sought by U.S. authorities under a New York court order in May. The U.S. government offered a $5 million reward for his capture. (AP)

Rousing Reception for Abbas At His First Public Rally

Interim Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas, the front-runner in upcoming presidential elections, received a loud ovation from thousands of supporters at his first public rally Tuesday, generating some excitement for the low-key politician seeking to replace the late Yasser Arafat. The rally came as Palestinian election officials announced anti-fraud safeguards for the Jan. 9 vote, saying voters will be marked with indelible ink, among other measures. (AP)

Blockbuster threatens hostile bid for Hollywood

DALLAS | Blockbuster Inc. said Tuesday it will launch a hostile bid for Hollywood Entertainment Corp. next month if the rival's directors won't negotiate a deal.

Blockbuster, the nation's largest movie-rental chain, said it would offer stockholders of its top rival $11.50 per share in cash, or about $700 million, plus the assumption of $300 million of Hollywood debt, in mid-January. That's the same offer that Blockbuster made to Hollywood in November.

The cash tender offer is the latest salvo in a competition for Hollywood that pits Blockbuster against Hollywood chairman Mark Wattles and a Los Angeles investment firm, who have offered $10.25 per share, or about $624 million.

If it succeeds in buying Hollywood, Blockbuster would control about half the nation's rental stores. Edward B. Stead, Blockbuster's general counsel, said the company has spoken with officials at the Federal Trade Commission and is "very optimistic" about winning necessary regulatory approval for the takeover.

Blockbuster believes that by acquiring Wilsonville, Ore.-based Hollywood, it can better compete in the changing home entertainment market. Blockbuster is locked in a price war with online pioneer Netflix Inc. and Wal-Mart Stores Inc. for rentals ordered on the Internet and delivered through the mail. DAVID KOENIG (AP)

Forecaster Puts Toyota Ahead of Chrysler by '09

DETROIT | Japanese automaker Toyota Motor Corp. is on pace to unseat DaimlerChrysler AG as the third-leading U.S. seller of cars and trucks by the end of the decade, a forecasting firm says.

CSM Worldwide said Tuesday its long-range forecast has Toyota, including the Lexus and Scion brands, accounting for 14.1 percent of the U.S. market by 2009, slightly ahead of DaimlerChrysler's 14 percent. Such growth would be nothing new for Japan's No. 1 automaker, whose U.S. sales rose 6.3 percent last year and were up 9.3 percent for the first 11 months of 2004.

At the same time, General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co., the nation's two-largest carmakers, have lost business to foreign brands despite spending far more on consumer incentives in hopes of lifting sales.

By 2009, CSM predicts GM to account for 25 percent of the U.S. market, followed by Ford at 19.2 percent. JOHN PORRETTA (AP)

Views on Economy Improve Greatly

NEW YORK | Improving labor market conditions and cheaper energy prices led to a sharp increase in a widely watched indicator of consumer confidence in the U.S. economy in December, a good sign for growth heading into the new year.

The Conference Board, a business research group, reported Tuesday that its index of consumer confidence leapt by nearly 10 points to 102.3 in December from 92.6 in November, following four months of declines. It was the highest level for the indicator since July, well above the 94 investors expected. (AP)

Stalemate Likely In Md. Assembly

House, Senate reject
Gov. Ehrlich's medical malpractice reform bill

ANNAPOLIS, MD. | The two houses of the General Assembly set out on divergent paths toward medical malpractice insurance reform Tuesday after rejecting Gov. Robert Ehrlich's plan to resolve what the state's political leaders agree is a burgeoning health care crisis in Maryland.

The Senate approved a bill drafted by Democratic leaders that differs significantly from the bill Ehrlich proposed when he brought lawmakers back to Annapolis for a special legislative session to try to provide doctors some relief from soaring malpractice insurance premiums.

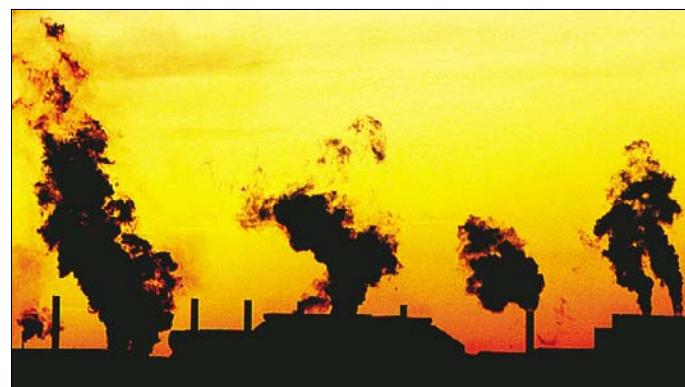

The Senate version does not include some of the restrictions on malpractice lawsuits, called tort reform, proposed by the governor.

Later in the day, the House Rules Committee approved a House leadership bill that is closer to Ehrlich's tort reform plans. But like the Senate bill, it would use a two percent tax on premiums paid by managed care organizations to underwrite the cost of the malpractice reforms, a tax rejected by Ehrlich.

With the two houses far apart on tort reform and Ehrlich saying he would veto any bill that included the HMO tax, it appeared unlikely that any bill could be passed that would be acceptable to the governor and the General Assembly.

N. Va. Group Backs Metro Sales Tax

WASHINGTON | The idea of raising the Washington region's sales tax to fund Metro got a boost Tuesday, when the Northern Virginia Transportation Authority lined up in favor.

A blue ribbon panel this month recommended a half a percent sales tax hike to be earmarked for Metro. Northern Virginia voters rejected a proposed sales tax increase for transportation in 2002. It would have provided money for mass transit and road improvements. This time, NVTA chairman David Snyder believes things are different.

"As we dug into the public opinion surveys and other types of information, we're convinced that a Metro-only sales tax, in fact, would pass," Snyder said.

Unlike many other public transit systems, Metro lacks a dedicated funding source. MICHAEL W. KAHN (AP)

Woman, 55, Gives Birth To Triplets for Daughter

RICHMOND, VA. | A 55-year-old woman acting as a surrogate for her daughter gave birth to triplets Tuesday.

Tina Cade delivered the two boys and one girl by Cesarean section at Bon Secours St. Mary's Hospital. She experienced "mild complications," which the hospital said is not uncommon following such surgery.

The babies were not due until mid-February, but doctors decided to perform a C-section because Cade was having excessive swelling and because of concerns about her heart.

"Mommy is doing fine," Dr. James Jones Jr. said at a news conference with Cade's daughter, Camille, and son-in-law, Jason Hammond. "The babies are really doing well."

Cade carried the babies for her oldest daughter, who suffers from endometriosis. The condition affects the lining of the uterus and makes it difficult to become pregnant.

The Hammonds, both resident physicians at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, tried for four years to become pregnant. After years of offering to help, the Hammonds relented and Cade began hormone-replacement therapy. Then, in the spring, she underwent in-vitro fertilization and three embryos were implanted into her uterus.

The triplets were delivered from 12:22 to 12:24 p.m. Tuesday. The boys weighed 4 pounds, 9 ounces and 3 pounds, 12 ounces; the girl weighed 4 pounds, 10 ounces. (AP)

Area's Murder Rates Drop

Homicides fall by 19 percent in District, but rise in Prince George's

WASHINGTON | As 2004 draws to a close, homicide rates are down in the nation's capital and most of its suburbs.

The District of Columbia was pacing nearly 19 percent below last year's levels. As of Tuesday, 195 people had lost their lives as a result of homicide, compared to 240 by the same date last year, according to the D.C. Metropolitan Police Department.

Most of the region's other major jurisdictions also saw significant declines in homicide rates during 2004.

Montgomery County, Md., had a total of 17 homicides as of Tuesday, compared to 23 for all of last year. Officials noted that all but two of this year's cases have resulted in arrests or convictions.

Jurisdictions in the District's closest northern Virginia suburbs have also had limited problems with homicides. In Fairfax County there have been eight, one less than all of 2003.

"We have cleared every case this year except two," said Officer Bud Walker of the Fairfax County Police Department.

Only one homicide has been reported this year in Arlington County, compared to three for all of 2003. Neighboring Alexandria City has seen two homicides this year, compared to four last year.

But in Prince George's County, Md., homicides were pacing well above last year's levels. As of Tuesday, there were 148, compared to 128 through Dec. 28, 2003. Police Chief Melvin C. High said he was "extremely concerned" about the numbers. DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

CLASH OF THE TITANS: The Nissan Titan, the company's first full-sized pickup, earned a reputation for its quality, analysts said, and is one factor that helped push Nissan to impressive sales gains this year.

XRS: A Good Sport

Toyota's '05 Corolla surprisingly packs an engine with kick

ROAD TEST | You will be forgiven a little cynicism and maybe even a snicker or two at the suggestion of a sporty Toyota Corolla. Well designed, popular and reliable, sure. But sporty?

Before you pooh-pooh, take a drive in a Corolla XRS, a new variant for '05. It could be a contender.

At the point where most us are ready to back off and upshift, this engine is just starting to get interested in the game. And a passing maneuver or an attempt to accelerate uphill almost always requires a downshift.

It's an excellent gearbox mated to a clutch that's easy to get used to and modulate. The blaring "beep beep beep" inside the car whenever reverse is engaged, however, might drive the high-strung over the edge. It's there to warn the driver who might have accidentally engaged reverse instead of first.

The XRS is tons of fun to drive—tempting you to act like you own the road.

To the young gearheads at whom this car is aimed, the screaming engine and constant shifting are part of the fun of a performance car. You'll see these fitted with loud aftermarket mufflers and other goodies under the hood.

But Toyota gives them a good start. The XRS package also includes a sport-tuned suspension with a strut tower brace up front to help prevent twisting of the body in turns, which Toyota said also improves handling. Ride height is lowered by a half inch. And the XRS has firmer coil springs and shocks.

Four Michelin performance tires on 16-inch wheels replace the ordinary rubber on 15-inch wheels worn by other Corollas. And Toyota says it has tuned the steering system for better feedback to the driver.

A warning for those of you planning long distance drives with your XRS: The ride is very firm and the cabin is quite noisy. Both can get old after a few hours on the interstate. Test drive before writing a check.

To help stiffen the body structure, Toyota has installed a cross brace behind the rear seat.

But the XRS is great fun to drive and all too tempting to drive aggressively. The four-wheel disc brakes do a good job of hauling the XRS down from highway speeds quickly.

A sporty interior includes front buckets with extra bolstering. You never get completely comfortable, however; get close to the steering wheel and your thighs are unsupported.

The XRS interior is attractive and well thought out, with clear gauges, simple and well-located controls, and plenty of storage room. TOM INCANTALUPO (NEWSDAY)

The seats look comfy but getting squared away with the steering wheel proves difficult. The gauges are clear and easy to comprehend, though.

Car Care

Automotive expert PAT GOSS owns Pat Goss Car World, Inc., a local car repair company. He chats regularly on washingtonpost.com/cars.

I have a Volkswagen Passat that's been getting terrible gas mileage for the past two months (about 12 to 14 mpg). Everything seems to be working fine, though. Do you have any idea what I should check?

Whenever you have a noticeable decrease in fuel economy begin by checking the thermostat. A cold running engine can cost two to 10 miles per gallon.

My son has offered me his 2002 Ford Taurus SE company car when it comes off lease. It's been maintained according to the Ford schedule and has 78,000 miles on it. Could it go another 70,000 miles?

It's possible, but not likely. Most manufacturers' preventive maintenance schedules are based on a life expectancy of 100,000 miles. To go 150,000 miles you usually need stricter maintenance.

A dealer told me to use "consistently high-quality gas" in my 2004 Subaru Forester. Which brands should I stick with to be in the high-quality range? Should I use premium gas even if my car requires only 87 octane?

There is no benefit to using premium and there actually could be some disadvantages. High quality is any name brand.

Do you have any advice on protecting a car from being vandalized? My car's windows have been smashed twice in the past two months while it was parked in the District on 15th Street NW. Nothing was stolen (there was literally nothing in the car to tempt a thief). It's a 2001 Corolla with a loud alarm system.

The club is good. Also a pedal lock is very visual and very difficult to defeat. They may be trying to steal the car, as it is very prone to theft.

I have a 2001 Pontiac Sunfire. The windows fog whenever I'm not using the air conditioning or the defroster. This makes for cold driving in winter. Someone suggested I should stop breathing. Any practical suggestions?

Check for dampness under the floor mats. Usually fogging like yours is the result of too much moisture in the car.

MAGIC MAN: As Jared Jeffries goes, so go the Wizards. Washington is 6-0 this year when Jeffries scores at least ten points. The third-year forward is averaging a career-high six points per game for the Wizards (15-11) this season.

Cavs' James Ushers In a New Age

It's hard to believe with his play, but Cleveland star is just turning 20

NBA | LeBron James used to bring his birth certificate along to AAU games to prove his age.

"They questioned me because of the level of my game," the Cleveland Cavaliers forward said. "I've always played the game above my age."

Then maybe he should keep documentation of his Dec. 30, 1984, birth handy.

There remain a few NBA skeptics, who are still having hard time accepting that a 19-year-old kid who skipped college could possibly be this big, this strong, this fast, this unselfish or this good.

"I don't believe that," Boston Celtics coach Doc Rivers joked when told James was still weeks away from his 20th birthday. "The way he's playing, he's got to be 30."

On Thursday, LeBron hits the big 2-0 and, hard to believe, he has already joined the NBA's elite.

"I don't call him King James," said Minnesota forward Kevin Garnett, the reigning league MVP. "I call him The Gift. A gift

BOY WONDER: Cleveland's LeBron James, seen dunking on Sunday, is averaging over 24 rebounds, seven points and seven assists a game. And he isn't 20 yet.

Annika Sorenstam won 10 of the 20 tournaments she entered this year.

Sorenstam Repeats as Top Athlete

AWARDS | She won early and often, and often by overwhelming margins. She won on four continents — in Australia, Sweden and Japan and in six of the 50 United States. She won a major, the most money and a remarkable 10 times in just 20 starts worldwide.

Small wonder then, that what was an average year for golfer Annika Sorenstam was more than good enough to earn her recognition as The Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year for the second straight year.

Her performance this season wasn't nearly as eventful as 2003, when she won two majors and 11 times on the LPGA Tour, became the first woman since 1945 to play on the PGA Tour and entered the Hall of Fame. But it was every bit as efficient.

Sorenstam began it with a win in the ANZ Ladies Masters. She ended it by edging Cristie Kerr in a playoff in the ADT Championship — her only victory that didn't come by multiple shots. JIM LITKE (AP) for Cleveland, and for the league."

In just his second season in the pros, James has raised his game to an All-Star level. Through 27 games, he's averaging 24.6 points, 7.0 rebounds, 7.3 assists and leading the league in steals (71) while carrying the Cavaliers (16-11) into first place in the Central Division.

In the first third of the season, James has dropped a career-high 43 points on the Detroit Pistons, become the youngest player to reach 500 career assists and rebounds and was named the Eastern Conference's top player for November.

Lately, he has been flirting with an elusive first career triple-double. In a win over New Orleans on Sunday, James had 22 points, a career-high 14 assists and nine rebounds. He and Kobe Bryant are the only players averaging more than 24 points, seven rebounds and seven assists.

"In two or three years, when he learns the game better, he'll be unstoppable," Cleveland coach Paul Silas said. TOM WITHERS (AP)

Louisville's Petrino, LSU Hold 'Preliminary Meeting'

Louisville football coach Bobby Petrino has met with LSU officials about the Tigers job but refused to say if he expected further talks. The LSU job opened when Nick Saban left for the Miami Dolphins, who fired Dave Wannstedt earlier this season. Petrino, who called his session with LSU a "preliminary meeting," is in Memphis, where the No. 7 Cardinals play No. 10 Boise State in the Liberty Bowl on Friday. (AP)

Vanderbilt running back Kwane Doster was shot to death after his friends and a group of other men exchanged "trash talk" about their cars, Tampa police said Tuesday. ## Bzdelik Takes Fall for Nuggets' Woes

NBA | Following a lackluster loss to Cleveland earlier this month, Denver coach Jeff Bzdelik questioned whether his players were in shape and said he was losing sleep because of the Nuggets' inconsistent play.

Unfortunately for him, things never really got better.

Denver (13-15) fired Bzdelik on Tuesday, one day after the Nuggets lost their sixth straight game and failed again to live up to the high expectations that came with the off-season addition of All-Star forward Kenyon Martin. Assistant Michael Cooper took over on an interim basis after Bzdelik became the first NBA coach to be fired this season.

"Right now, I really felt the team needed a change," general manager Kiki Vandeweghe said. (AP)

Registered Offender

Kevin Bacon delves into the tortured mind of a child molester

FILM | Kevin Bacon wants you to know the same thing he told his kids: No children were harmed during the making of his latest movie.

In "The Woodsman," Bacon gives a career performance as the most reviled of sex offenders, a child molester coming off 12 years in prison for abusing young girls. Filled with self-loathing, his character, Walter, makes an honorable attempt to go straight but is tormented by temptation, shunned by his family and abhorred by co-workers who discover his past.

Bacon and his wife, co-star Kyra Sedgwick, sat down to discuss the film's themes with their 15-year-old son and 12-year-old daughter.

"I told them, 'It's not a movie where you're going to see any bad things happen to children'.... It's dangerous subject matter, but it's not a gratuitous, sensationalized film."

Directed by first-time filmmaker Nicole Kassell, "The Woodsman" is adapted from a play by Steven Fechter. Along with Sedgwick, who plays a co-worker romantically involved with Walter, the film co-stars rappers Mos Def and Eve, Benjamin Bratt and David Alan Grier.

Though he broke into film as a snooty frat boy in "National Lampoon's Animal House" and became a teen idol with "Footloose," Bacon said the dark tone of "The "Woodsman" was more in line with his dramatic sensibilities.

"I don't have hesitation surrounding me and my image, my persona. That doesn't apply to me in my life. I'll play anything. I've played a lot of bad guys, people who have done a lot of bad things."

The film has drawn Academy

Awards buzz for Bacon, who has never been nominated. But Bacon is resigned to the idea the Academy may pass him by.

"If it doesn't happen, of course I'll be disappointed, but if it was all I wanted in life ... I would have jumped out a window a long time ago." DAVID GERMAIN (AP)

Metal's 'Retribution'

Judas Priest readies its hard-charging post-reunion album

MUSIC | Since vocalist Rob Halford left iconic metal act Judas Priest in 1992, fans held out hope that there would some day be a reunion. In 2003, their wish came true: Halford rejoined the group with news of a summer Ozzfest berth, a planned new studio album and a world tour the following year.

The second prong of the plan is "Angel of Retribution," a new studio album due March 1 via Epic. It's Halford's first album with the band since 1990's "Painkiller." The set will be bundled with a concert DVD shot in a bullring in Valencia, Spain.

Writing for "Retribution," which is still being sequenced, began in October 2003 and continued on and off this year while Judas Priest was on the road. It was another first for the band, as it had never stopped working on an album to go on tour before.

"We didn't even intend to take a break, but the fans were going crazy," Halford told Billboard.com.

Guitarist Glen Tipton says the time away from the studio also helped the band decide which songs were the most appropriate for the album. "If we hadn't had that break, maybe that wouldn't have been so clear," he admits.

The five tracks Billboard.com has heard recall the ferocious, full-on metal assault of "Painkiller." The track "Deal With the Devil" is classic Priest, while "Hell Rider" includes a blazing, furious double-guitar attack.

The group has unveiled more than a month's worth of European tour dates, beginning Feb. 23 in Copenhagen. The trek will reach North America later in the year.

Films for the Ages

ARCHIVES | Films teaching Cold War children to "duck and cover" and describing how Oskar Schindler saved thousands of Jews from the Holocaust are being added to the National Film Registry. Also being preserved: Elvis Presley, Bruce Lee and Jerry Lewis.

They are among 25 films selected by the Library of Congress to the registry, which now holds 400 pictures.

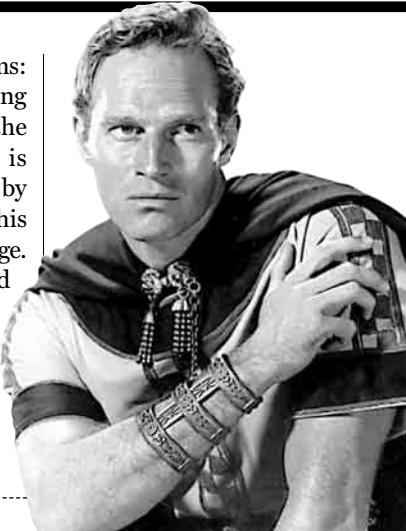

Librarian of Congress James

H. Billington made the selections after evaluating nearly 1,000 titles nominated by the public and consulting staff and advisers, the library said.

"The films we choose are not necessarily the 'best' American films ever made or the most famous," Billington said in a statement. Rather, they are chosen because they have "cultural, historical or aesthetic significance."

Among the better-known films: → BEN HUR, the 1959 epic starring Charlton Heston, which tells the story of a Jewish prince who is betrayed and sent into slavery by a Roman friend, only to regain his freedom and come back for revenge. Its centerpiece: an action-packed chariot race.

→ DUCK AND COVER, the 1951 landmark civil defense film seen by millions of schoolchildren in the 1950s. In the case of an atomic attack, children were advised to duck beneath a table or desk and cover their heads.

→ JAILHOUSE ROCK, which showcased Elvis Presley in ultimate rebel mode. The edginess in this 1957 film was toned down in later Presley pictures.

→ ENTER THE DRAGON, 1973, a U.S.-Hong Kong co-production that was the last film completed by Bruce Lee and is considered one of the most influential martial arts films ever made.

→ THE NUTTY PROFESSOR, the 1963 film which some rank as comic Jerry Lewis' greatest. LAURA MECKLER (AP)

Psychic Friends

In 'Medium,' Patricia Arquette earns a living by talking to the dead

TELEVISION | In 1987's "A Nightmare on Elm Street 3: Dream Warriors," Patricia Arquette played someone with psychic powers. Now, she'll do it on a weekly basis.

In "Medium," which premieres Jan. 3 at 10 p.m., on NBC, Arquette plays Allison Dubois, a real-life Arizona housewife who can communicate with dead people.

Married to an aerospace engineer and the mother of three, Dubois was studying law when she discovered her psychic abilities could provide research in solving murders and missing-person cases.

Arquette says she asked many questions of Dubois to try to fully grasp the mystery of her powers, learning the information "doesn't come to her in a linear fashion ... you are just getting snippets of images of something in the future and something in the past."

Arquette can also see through glass. AP

Arquette did change one aspect of Dubois' character: "She seems very self-confident. I wanted my Allison to be a little more affected by the judgments she makes."

She reasons this will provide viewers with more insight because some people "still feel like it's evil and devil work or whatever, so you want to be as open as you can, so people can empathize with you and feel like they can come along with you on this journey." BRIDGET BYRNE (AP)

Filmmakers watch as a church grapples with social change

TELEVISION | The 90-minute documentary "The Congregation" (9:30 p.m., PBS) focuses on the story of a single church to examine the social changes that are challenging centuries of tradition in the Methodist Church and other denominations.

Academy Award-winning filmmakers Alan and Susan Raymond spent more than two years with a progressive United Methodist congregation in a Philadelphia suburb. After their minister of

The film follows turmoil at a Methodist church in a Philadelphia neighborhood.

37 years resigned, members were divided in their reaction to a new minister with a decidedly conservative approach to worship and social activism. As church attendance falls and the collection plate yields lower revenues, the church faces a crisis. Then the associate pastor announces that she is a practicing homosexual, an admission that may deprive her of her ministerial credentials. While her progressive congregation rallies around her, she faces a church trial.

The Raymonds' other films include the groundbreaking 1973 series "An American Family," which many consider the granddaddy of all reality TV shows. Their film "I Am a Promise: The Children of Stanton Elementary School" received an Oscar for best documentary in 1994. KEVIN MCDONOUGH

Always a Brand-New Bag

Fickle fashionistas can rent, then return the very latest purses

FASHION | Handbag enthusiasts disappointed that Santa didn't drop off the latest Fendi baguette or Prada backpack this holiday season have another option: Bag, Borrow or Steal (bagborroworsteal.com).

The site offers access to more chic handbags than an army of fashionistas could sport in a single season. Customers can swap bags as often as they like, all for a monthly membership fee, much like Netflix does with DVDs.

Co-founder Lloyd Lapidus said the concept came from watching "bag-aholic" family members.

Prada's calfskin leather tote bag is available to "Diva" subscribers.

"Trendsetter" members can rent Baby Phat's Signature mini hobo handbag.

"Princess" subscribers have access to Lulu Guinness bags like this one.

"They're always lending out or borrowing purses, whether it's a special occasion or a night on the town," he said.

From Baby Phat and Burberry to Nicky Hilton and Yves Saint Laurent, Bag, Borrow or Steal boasts hundreds of handbags to rent at three monthly membership levels, plus $9.95 per bag to cover shipping and handling.

There's "Trendsetter," offering the latest from "new, emerging designers," for $19.95; "Princess," providing well-known designer bags, for $49.95; and "Diva," giving customers their pick of the priciest, top designer bags, for $99.95.

Customers can send a "steal-it" request and purchase the must-have bag at a fraction of the cost, depending on its age and wear. (The company reserves the right to charge customers for bags that have been stained or damaged.)

While most customers come from major urban centers, a growing number hail from rural areas. "They might not have a Madison Avenue or Bal Harbour address," Lapidus said.

Absent from the site, however, are bags costing firmly in the four figures — ultra-luxury brands such as Judith Lieber and Louis Vuitton.

NASA researchers salivate over plan to blast a hole in a comet

The boys at NASA can hardly wait. July Fourth, they get to bust up a comet, Hollywood-style.

"Blow things up? I'm there. Yeah, I don't have any issue with that," said Richard Grammier, manager of the project for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory. He used to work with explosives in the military.

The spacecraft is called Deep Impact, like the 1998 movie about a comet headed for Earth. NASA will blast a crater into Comet Tempel 1 and analyze the stuff hurled out.

Planners said the energy produced will be like 4.5 tons of TNT going off — producing fireworks for observatories.

"We're going to create our own crater," said Donald Yeomans, a scientist at JPL in California — and an adviser on the movie. "We'll understand how the comet is put together, its density, its porosity, whether it has a surface crust and underlying ices, whether it's layered ice, whether it's a wimpy comet or whether it's a rock-hard ice ball."

This is one spacecraft NASA wants to smash and trash.

"It would be like it's standing in the middle of the road and this huge semi coming down at it at 23,000 mph, you know, just bam!" Grammier said.

Deep Impact will be the first spacecraft to touch a comet. It will travel 268 million miles to intersect Comet Tempel 1 beyond Mars, more than 80 million miles from Earth.

Liftoff is targeted for Jan. 12. After Jan. 28, Tempel 1 will be beyond reach.

The European Space Agency's Rosetta spacecraft will attempt to land on a comet in 2014. Deep Impact will provide "instant gratification," said Grammier.

Fans of the film — the movie and spacecraft people hit on the same name independent of each other, about the same time — can rest easy. NASA guarantees that Deep Impact will not put the comet on a collision course with Earth. Some scientists contend the comet will shatter.

Scientists will learn about deflecting a comet if one ever happens Earth's way. Comets have hit Earth before.

By knowing what's inside comets, NASA would use them as watering holes and fueling stations. Robots or astronauts could break the comet's water down for fuel.

Music

Colorful Sound

TIM DELAUGHTER, singer/founder of The Polyphonic Spree, a 25-piece orchestral pop band, was online Wednesday, Aug. 11 | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

I have seen you three times and it seems it would be difficult to replicate the live sound on the record. With 25 people in the band, how do you go about recording?

We all get into the studio together as one band and we play together at first to get the vibe and feeling right. We then put down the drums, bass and piano and gradually bring in other groups separately. We build on it, but initially the whole band is in the recording studio.

About the robes — do the colors symbolize anything?

The robes just symbolize that we are a colorful band and are unified by all these colors.

I'm curious how such an unconventional band developed its following without much radio play (at least around here). Word-of-mouth? Lots of touring? I must admit I first heard of the Spree from the iPod commercial and the guest spot on "Scrubs."

It has all been word and mouth — living and breathing human beings talking about their experience either listening to the record or seeing us live or drinking the Kool-Aid.

As insulting as it may be, I have never heard of this band before today. If you could pick any one song, which would you recommend?

"Section 10" on "The Beginning Stages Of..."

Why the ridiculously monotonous drone at the end of "The Beginning Stages of..."? Love the album, hate the drone.

I just wanted to fill the space of that CD. I thought, "You know, we are in there, we are in the studio, let's fill up the CD." That wasn't intended to be an album, it was just for us to get shows. My wife came up with using four octaves of my voice that were sampled 11 years ago. I actually fell asleep when I did it. I have only heard it all the way through once. There are some people who only like that part of the record, if you can believe it.

Assault on the Truth?

THE RECENT ARTICLES about the Rev. Irene Elizabeth Stroud's defrocking in Philadelphia over her homosexuality, as reported in Tuesday's Express, sends me the same message as the military's "don't ask, don't tell" policy: it is better to lie than to be honest. Is that the message that the United Methodist Church wishes to send our children? Is that the church's interpretation of Christ's message? It certainly isn't mine. Perhaps the United Methodist Church hierarchy ought to read Christ's words on the subject matter.

REVELATIONS

'I'm a Brand, Not an Actress,' Ashley Realizes With Horror

ASHLEY OLSEN (the non-anorexic one) is taking acting lessons, Star magazine reported. The tabloid said the 18-year-old New York University freshman is attending a drama class two days a week at the William Esper Studio in New York. Meanwhile, InTouch Weekly reported that Mary-Kate, accompanied by her bodyguard and eating coach, is looking for apartments without Ashley. Is an artistic schism driving the siblings apart? (EXPRESS)

Would you pay $455 for traces of this man's 27-year-old saliva?

UNWISE TAUNTING Entertainer Is Begging For Chandelier to Crush Him

ERIC IDLE, the Monty Python member who wrote the lyrics for the Broadway-bound musical "Spamalot," dissed "The Phantom of the Opera" in a recent AP interview. "Spamalot" — a stage version of the 1975 classic "Monty Python and the Holy Grail" that's now previewing in Chicago — is upbeat, he said, which is what a musical should be. "To me, the musical is best when it's a musical comedy," he said. "All the years when Andrew Lloyd Webber, people with plates over their faces moaning and groaning and singing, was for me dead loss. I hated all that stuff," he said. No one bothered to reach Webber for comment. (EXPRESS)

NO WAY!!!! Wacky Celebrity Junk Sells for Big Bucks on eBay!

Three tablespoons of water, from a cup ELVIS PRESLEY allegedly used during a 1977 concert, sold on eBay Saturday for $455. Wade Jones of Belmont, N.C., sold the water, which he acquired at age 13 after a concert in Charlotte. He stored the cup in a deep freezer for eight years, then melted the ice and transferred the water to a glass vial. As proof of the water's authenticity, Jones provided photos of Presley during the concert in which several plastic foam cups can be seen behind him. "It's one thing to be an Elvis fan, but then you tell them you have this cup of water and they think you're a fanatic," he said. "I'm not like the people bidding on this water." (AP)

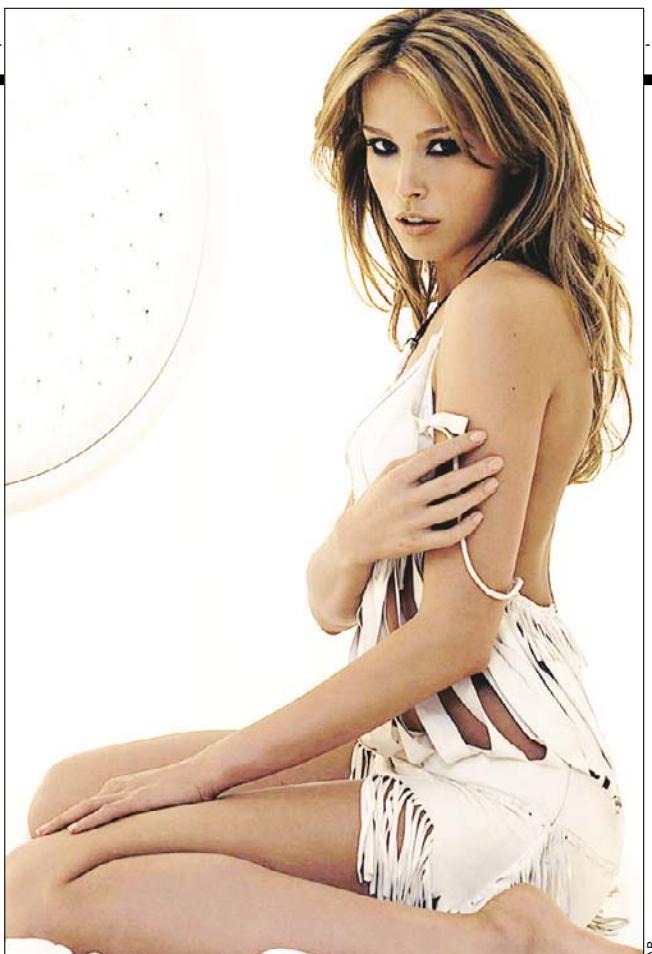

Liza's luck remains not only bad, but highly embarrassing, as the year ends.

TUMBLERS Bed Sues Minnelli for Falling Out of It; She Countersues

LIZA MINNELLI was hospitalized early Monday after falling out of bed, police said. Minnelli was taken to a Manhattan hospital, according to a police department spokesman. Minnelli has had a recent rash of legal difficulties. In November, she was sued by her former bodyguard, who accused her of assault and battery and claimed she made him have sex with her to keep his job. Her estranged husband, David Gest, has filed a $10 million lawsuit alleging that she beat him. Minnelli has countersued both men. (AP)

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Others may not be reacting to you in the way you have anticipated. Irritation, followed by self-doubt, will be the result.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Now is no time to put off until tomorrow what can be addressed. The surest way to solve a problem is to face it head on — right now.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Without knowing it, you may be responding to pressures from loved ones to behave in a way unnatural for you. Draw the line.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're in no mood to put up with restraints or limitations of any kind — but on the other hand, don't let yourself get carried away, either.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may be volatile, unsettled, unpredictable and even intimidating to some people. Get to the bottom of a hot emotional issue.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Others must get used to leaving you alone to figure out, on your own, what is your best course of action. Stress independence.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may take your newfound authority too much to heart and begin intruding on others who are simply trying to do their jobs. Back off before it's too late.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your natural sentimentality, though usually hidden, will play an important role throughout your busy day. Balance emotions and intellectual, rational responses.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your steady, rational side will be at odds with your more flighty, impulsive side. Which will win? Much depends on focus on details.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may not get all the answers you think you need, but the information you get can be put to profitable use almost immediately.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You'll find satisfaction in relating to Aquarius, Pisces or Cancer natives who share your interest in the well-being of others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You may be moody, but don't let your emotions get the better of you. You don't want to risk harming your reputation.
